Descendants of John Evans Carson

Generation No. 1

1. JUDGE JOHN EVANS[5] CARSON (JOSEPH[4], DAVID[3], SAMUEL[2], ALEXANDER HARVEY[1])[1] was born March 28, 1806 in Crab Orchard, Lincoln Co., Kentucky[2,3], and died April 23, 1876 in Crab Orchard, Lincoln Co., Kentucky[4,5]. He married (1) MARENDA W. FISH[6,7] May 23, 1839 in Prob. Crab Orchard, Kentucky[8], daughter of JAMES FISH and SARAH ROBERTS. She was born April 23, 1813 in Lincoln Co., Kentucky[9,10], and died August 12, 1853 in Mt. Vernon, Rockcastle Co., Kentucky[11,12,13]. He married (2) ALMINA FISH[14] June 13, 1857 in Lincoln Co., Kentucky[15], daughter of JOHN FISH and MARY HIATT. She was born November 14, 1816 in Lincoln Co., Kentucky[16,17,17], and died March 12, 1868 in Crab Orchard, Kentucky[18].

Notes for JUDGE JOHN EVANS CARSON:
Known as 'Judge' John E. Carson.

Per 'The Real Wild West' by Michael Wallis: "On April 23, 1875, Molly's revered father, Judge John Evans Carson, was shot and killed on the church steps in Crab Orchard. In a strange way, he was a belated victim of the Civil War. A longtime adversary who still quarreled with Judge Carson because of Carson's fervent pro-Confederate stance apparently ambushed him 'Over war talk," as one witness put it."

Per note from Francis Hubert, "Minnie Carson Bennett and Minnie Hill both told of this account of the death of Judge John Evans Carson: 'Uncle Judge was killed on the church steps by a man named Smith, over war talk.' Minnie Bennett was 87 at the time she wrote, and she left Kentucky when she was 12 years old. She said, "I remember the tape on holes where he was shot." She would have been 8 years old at the time."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY Friday, April 28, 1876: "A BLOODY MURDER - Judge Carson Assassinated"

"Crab Orchard was the scene, on Sunday last, of a most foul murder. Judge J.E. Carson a useful and respected citizen of that place, aged 72 years, while on his way to church, was shot and instantly killed, within a few steps of the church door, by a man named John Q. Smith, also a resident of Crab Orchard. Without any warning, and from the rear, Smith commenced shooting at Carson, and after firing three shots, any one of which would have proved fatal, a Mr. Foley caught Smith and endeavored to prevent him shooting again, but Smith, who is a very strong man, shook him away at the same time threatening to shoot Foley, if he further interferred. He then fired two more shots, both taking effect in the Judge's body. Smith made no effort to escape, and when, on being arrested, was asked why he did the shooting, only replied "that someone had to kill him, and it might have as well been me, as any one else." He is a man about 50 years old, a carpenter by trade, and is naturally, very reticent, and for this reason, and the fact of the bloody deed, is supposed, by many, to be crazy. It is said that he has cherished an ill feeling for Judge Carson since January last, when the Judge, in his capacity as Asscessor of Crab Orchard, applied to him for his list. Some warm words issued between them, and ended by Smith running Carson out of the house with a hatchet. Smith waived an examining trial and as his case is not a bailable one, he will be held in jail here, to be tried for an indictment for murder at the next term of the Circuit Court--provided the friends of Judge Carson do not fear that justice will be thwarted and mete out a more certain punishment to him. Fearing this, the Jail has been nightly guarded by a number of young men summoned for the purpose. Such fiendish acts as the one recorded, deserve the quickest and direst punishment of the law, else no person in the country can feel himself in the least safe. If Smith is insane, he ought to be ironed and placed in an asylum, if not, then severest penalty of the law can hardly atone for his dreadful crime."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY Friday, April 28, 1876: "AN EXCITING SCENE"

"On last Wednesday morning, a very exciting scene occurred at the Court House. The man, John Smith, who killed Judge Carson, was brought out to the Court House to see whether or not the case could be tried at this term. Four sons of Mr. Carson, John, James, Joe and David, came into the room. The Court on hearing that they were armed, had the Sheriff to search them, but no pistols were found. Smith was remanded to Jail, with a guard of six or eight men, and on reaching the Court yard, young Joe Carson, sprang forward with a drawn Navy Revolver, and, placing it almost against the breast of Smith, attempted to fire, but the pistol snapped. The other three sons were present with weapons, but by the courage of the guard, they were all four caught and disarmed, and Smith's life saved, so far. The two young men mostly engaged in the affair, were taken before the Judge, who, at first, ordered them to give bond in $500 each, to keep the peace, but on reflection, concluded to take their word of honor to do no further violence to the prisoner, and they were thus set at liberty. The sympathy of the entire community is with these young men and we heard numbers regret that young Carson did not succeed in avenging the death of his aged father."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY, October 20, 1876:

"John Smith, charged with murdering Judge Carson, at Crab Orchard was brought up from Louisville last Wednesday, and his case will, in all probability, be called this morning, and tried during the term. The case creates much excitement."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY, October 27, 1876: "CIRCUIT COURT - TRIAL OF JOHN SMITH"

"Promptly at nine o'clock, last Saturday morning, the Court called the case of the Commonwealth against John Smith, charged with the murder of John E. Carson, at Crab Orchard last April. The court room was filled with people from all parts of the county, who were anxious to hear the trial. It was with great difficulty that a jury was obtained, as nearly everybody had come to an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused from reading the papers or from rumors. It took nearly an entire day to get a jury, but finally the following jurymen were sworn: A.K. Denny, J.M. Elder, Jno. W. Logan, J.B. McKinney, G.N. Bradley, John Jones, A.M. Jones, John Dinwiddie, Jno. Menifee, George Bright, George Tribble and T.M. White. After they were sworn, the attorneys for the defense put in the plea of not guilty on account of the insanity of the accused, to which plea of insanity the attorney for the Commonwealth replied in effect that it was simulated, not a real insanity, and that the case of the murder was jealousy. In other words, that there was a 'woman at the bottom' of the entire acts of the defendant Smith. A great many witnesses were examined, especially for the defense, the latter to prove the monomania of Mr. Smith. The witnesses for the prosecution, in giving their evidence in chief, necessarily confined themselves to the act and circumstances of the killing, which occurred on a Sunday morning in April last, in front of the Baptist church door, at Crab Orchard. Judge Carson, the man killed, was shot by Smith with a revolver, five times, either of which is thought would have produced death. Such was the advanced age (72 years) of the deceased. Divine services were just about to begin. A Mr. Foley was with Mr. Carson, who asked Smith not to shoot, and held him for a moment, but Smith was bent on killing Judge Carson. After shooting all the loads out of his revolver, but one, (which failed to fire), Smith walked deliberately across the street where his carpenter shop was situated, but was halted and arrested and taken to Stanford to jail. There was some proof that Carson, who was town Assessor of Crab Orchard, went to Smith's shop to get a list of his taxable property, some months before the killing, and that Smith greatly abused him. There was also some proof that a certain woman who lived near Crab Orchard, was visited now and then by both Smith and Carson, privately. Some proof was also given that Smith sometimes drank liquor, but not to excess. His character was proven by all the witnesses to have been that of a quiet, peaceable, unoffensive man, one who rarely ever said a word to anyone even on business. That he had a great impediment in his speech, and did not like to talk. At the close of the statements as to the killing, etc, the Commonwealth rested her case in chief. The defense then introduced their witnesses to prove the plea of insanity. The sister of Smith, with whom he lived, the niece of Smith and the brother, swore that Smith acted strangely for several months before the killing. That his health was bad, had but little appetite, was restless and lost much sleep. That he imagined there were several men after him to kill him. That there was a combination of men to ruin his character and break him up in business. That on one occasion he told his sister, a maiden lady of fifty years of age, one night at home, that there were three men around the house who had come to harm him. Smith would not be satisfied until his sister or some one else, went for the town marshal and another person, to look for the three men. The marshal and another came, examined the premises, and told Smith no body was there, and that if he was afraid to stay there, to go and stay all night with one of them. Smith accepted the invitation, and went and staid all night with a Mr. DeBord. Other witnesses, among them Col. W.G. Welch, a Mr. Myers and others, testified to acts of monomania, or insanity. The defense introduced two physicians, who had heard all, or nearly all of the evidence and after defining the various species of insanity, said that, if the evidence was true, as detailed by the witnesses, then in their opinion as medical men, the man, John Smith, was of unsound mind. Other witness said that in their opinion, Smith was insane. The foregoing are the main details of the evidence in the defense. After this, the Commonwealth introduced rebutting evidence to show that Smith was a sane man. These were not medical men, however, but were the men who had known Smith for years. Many of them said they believed Smith to be of sound mind, from conversations they had with him on certain occasions. One other physician testified for the prosecution, but his evidence differed but little from that of the other two physicians who testified at the instance of the defense. At the conclusion of the testimony for and against the prisoner, the court gave full instructions to the jury, and adjourned them at five o'clock Tuesday evening, until after supper. The sheriff kept them together until half past six, p. m., when they were called together and the argument was opened for the defense by J.W.

Alcorn, Esq., in a forcible speech of about one hour. He was followed by Col. G.W. Dunlap for the prosecution in a speech of much power. He spoke over an hour and a quarter. After this, the jury were discharged until Wednesday morning, at 9 o'clock. At that hour, W.O. Hansford addressed the jury for the defense for over an hour. His speech was a feeling and good one. He was followed by Judge M.C. Saufley for the prosecution in a somewhat lengthy speech, but it had a seemingly powerful effect upon the jury and the audience. Next and last came Col. T.P. Hill, for the defense, in one of the finest and ablest efforts he ever made in behalf of a criminal at our bar. His speech, nearly two hours long, was logical, beautiful, eloquent and convincing. The case was closed by Commonwealth Atoorney George Denny. Mr. Denny, as a prosecutor, has but few equals in any district of the State. To say that he did justice to the Commonwealth, would be only a slight compliment. His effort in the prosecution was bold and telling, and showed him to be capable of attending to the public interest in the field to which he has been chosen. A number of ladies attended the speaking, and seemed to be much entertained. The case was given to the jury at 6 o'clock, and they retired and remained in their room for about two hours, without making a verdict. The Judge then adjourned them for the night, but called them together the next morning and they remained out until nearly noon. Being wholly unable to agree, they came in and so announced to the court, and they were therefore discharged. How they stood in the matter, no one yet knows, as they made a solemn vow among themselves not to let the public know. Smith, of course, was remanded to jail, where he will remain until the next term of this court in April, and all the long and tedious trial will have to be gone through with again. Four days and a part of two nights were spent in the investigatin of the Smith case, which is quite one-third of the entire term."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY April 27, 1877: "CIRCUIT COURT NOTES"

"The greater portion of the time of the Court since our last report has been taken up in the trial of John Smith, who our readers will remember, shot and killed Judge J.E. Carson, at Crab Orchard on the 23rd day of April, 1876. This is the second trial of the case, and as it has created great excitement throughout the county, it was impossible to obtain but four jurors out of the regular panel, to-wit: Thomas Robinson, Liberty Green, Perry Land and P.L. Simpson, and the Court being satisfied that a full jury could not be obtained in the county, appointed Mr. T.T. Daviess a special Sheriff to go to Boyle county and summons sixty men. On Friday morning about forty men, in obedience to his summons appeared in Court, from which the additional following jurors were obtained: Jeff. Hudson, Wm. Calvert, Peter Bonia, Anthony May, Wm. Dibon, J.N. Prewitt, Samuel McDowell and Nick McDowell, and the panel having been completed the jury was sworn in. The taking of the testimony was commenced at noon Friday, and after the examination of some thirty or forty witnesses was concluded on Tuesday morning, when the charges to the jury having been agreed upon, the argument of the case was begun. The plea of the defendant was that he was at the time of the killing, and is now, insane. He was very ably defended, the speeches of some of his counsel being especially comprehensive and eloquent. Commonwealth Attorney George Denny, Jr., closed the argument on Wednesday about 10 o'clock, with one of his best and most forcible speeches, and the case was then given to the jury, who, after a short retirement returned the following verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendant, John Smith, guilty of murder and fix as his punishment, confinement in the Penitentiary during his natural life." The verdict appears to give almost unusual satisfaction as it will be easy enough to change Mr. Smith's residence from the Penitentiary to the Asylum if the officers at the former institution discover the much longed for insanity. Since the first trial of the case in October last, Smith has been confined for safe keeping in the jail at Louisville, and we are informed by the Clerk of the Court that his case has already cost the Commonwealth over $2,000. It is to be hoped that it is at last ended."

"Sketch of 101 Ranch" (Oklahoma History)

In 1870 after bad luck on Fish place George and "Polly" going to California, stoped in Newtonia, MO., established a home and store where Alma was born June 21, 1875, also Zachary Taylor born April 26, 1878.
Some of Polly's brothers were from Crab Orchard and stayed with Polly while George Miller made trips for cattle and to establish the ranch at Miami, OK, - across the state line and 20 miles from the home in Missouri. George W. Carson, a brother was in party when he made first trip to Texas.
In 1880, he sold home in Newtonia, MO and the store and moved family to Baxter Springs, Kansas, 5 miles from Miami Ranch. Here, Sept. 9, 1881, third son, George Lee Miller, was born. In spring of 1881 after Polly had made the annual trip to Crab Orchard, they moved to Winfield, Kansas. There they began living with servants, a new carriage, prancing bays, also a surrey and gentle mare for Mrs. Miller. George then attended church in "formal" clothes, silk hat, and gold headed walking stick.
Joe Carson Miller was sent horseback by his father George, when 11 years old, to Baxter Springs, Kansas to tell 'White Eagle' and Cherokee Indians their new assigned land was desirable. In 1879, Cherokees accepted the land from the Government. Col. Joe was loved forever by Indians there and we all know that in Oklahoma they had built up a big ranch near Ponca City, (south of Winfield home) and were building a huge home three stories and basement with everything you could imagine when Col. George Miller, the father, died of pneumonia at the ranch on Sat., April 25, 1903 - age 61 years - body was shipped to Crab Orchard, Kentucky. Polly and children finished house by Xmas 1903 and ate 1st meal Xmas Day. Same house burned 1909 January, second one they called the "White House". Polly died July 31, 1918 - age 72"

Buried IOOF Cemetery, Ponca City, OK. Headstone reads: "Mother - Mollie A. Miller, Aug. 26, 1848 - July 21, 1918".

Reared by his grandfather John Fish on the Fish Plantation near Crab Orchard, KY.

Per family tree of Junaita Witt, after marriage to Mary Ann Carson they managed the Fish Plantation before moving west.

Moved from Rockcastle Co., KY to Newtonia, MO. Owned a general store in Newtonia.

1880 moved from Newtonia, Mo. to Baxter Springs, Kansas.

Large headstone in Fish Family Cemetery on the original Fish Plantation in Lincoln Co., KY. Headstone reads, "George W. Miller, born Feb. 26, 1842 Lincoln Co., KY, died Apr. 25, 1903, 101 Ranch, Bliss OT" (Oklahoma Territory). Still in good shape in May 2001, but overgrown with weeds.

To find cemetery: "Start at the Rockcastle/Lincoln county line on Route #150, go westward on #150 .8 mile to old farmhouse road on the right. Turn right, go .2 mile to house. Park car. The cemetery is about 200' up the rise from the house. The cemetery is in a field and is fenced. The weeds are head high and trees have been cut & dropped into the cemetery & have broken the fence and some of the stones." In May 2001, there was a locked gate at the road entrance from #150. Cows were in the pasture. The house is deserted and with the guidance of Jeff Mullens of McKnight Funeral Home in Crab Orchard, we climbed the fence and walked to the cemetery. Per Jeff, the gate could not be legally locked because of access issues for the cemetery, he would talk to the sheriff about it.

There were also headstones for Cyrus Sowder (b. Aug 1847, d. July 29, 1864), and also John A. Gove (b. 22 May 1816, d. 19 Oct 1848) - unknown family connections.

"SURPRISED EVERYBODY.

Geo. Carson is known by almost every man, woman and child in Blackwell, and has a friend in every one of them and they will all be surprised to learn of his marriage. It seems that George quietly slipped out of town, and without even informing his parents of his intention, journeyed to Lawrence, Kansas, and there took unto himself a wife, in the person of Miss Florence Smock, daughter of ex-county treasurer S. J. Smock. The wedding occurred on the 28th day of December, and the happy couple arrived here Monday evening asking for the Carson's parental blessing which they readily obtained. Mr. Carson has selected for his bride a young lady, who is well and favorable known in this city for her many accomplishments of hand, head and heart, and he is indeed fortunate in winning her for a life companion. George Carson, as we said before has almost as many friends as there are inhabitants of Blackwell, and he is a most exemplary young man. Generation No. 1

1. JUDGE JOHN EVANS[5] CARSON (JOSEPH[4], DAVID[3], SAMUEL[2], ALEXANDER HARVEY[1])[1] was born March 28, 1806 in Crab Orchard, Lincoln Co., Kentucky[2,3], and died April 23, 1876 in Crab Orchard, Lincoln Co., Kentucky[4,5]. He married (1) MARENDA W. FISH[6,7] May 23, 1839 in Prob. Crab Orchard, Kentucky[8], daughter of JAMES FISH and SARAH ROBERTS. She was born April 23, 1813 in Lincoln Co., Kentucky[9,10], and died August 12, 1853 in Mt. Vernon, Rockcastle Co., Kentucky[11,12,13]. He married (2) ALMINA FISH[14] June 13, 1857 in Lincoln Co., Kentucky[15], daughter of JOHN FISH and MARY HIATT. She was born November 14, 1816 in Lincoln Co., Kentucky[16,17,17], and died March 12, 1868 in Crab Orchard, Kentucky[18].

Notes for JUDGE JOHN EVANS CARSON:
Known as 'Judge' John E. Carson.

Per 'The Real Wild West' by Michael Wallis: "On April 23, 1875, Molly's revered father, Judge John Evans Carson, was shot and killed on the church steps in Crab Orchard. In a strange way, he was a belated victim of the Civil War. A longtime adversary who still quarreled with Judge Carson because of Carson's fervent pro-Confederate stance apparently ambushed him 'Over war talk," as one witness put it."

Per note from Francis Hubert, "Minnie Carson Bennett and Minnie Hill both told of this account of the death of Judge John Evans Carson: 'Uncle Judge was killed on the church steps by a man named Smith, over war talk.' Minnie Bennett was 87 at the time she wrote, and she left Kentucky when she was 12 years old. She said, "I remember the tape on holes where he was shot." She would have been 8 years old at the time."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY Friday, April 28, 1876: "A BLOODY MURDER - Judge Carson Assassinated"

"Crab Orchard was the scene, on Sunday last, of a most foul murder. Judge J.E. Carson a useful and respected citizen of that place, aged 72 years, while on his way to church, was shot and instantly killed, within a few steps of the church door, by a man named John Q. Smith, also a resident of Crab Orchard. Without any warning, and from the rear, Smith commenced shooting at Carson, and after firing three shots, any one of which would have proved fatal, a Mr. Foley caught Smith and endeavored to prevent him shooting again, but Smith, who is a very strong man, shook him away at the same time threatening to shoot Foley, if he further interferred. He then fired two more shots, both taking effect in the Judge's body. Smith made no effort to escape, and when, on being arrested, was asked why he did the shooting, only replied "that someone had to kill him, and it might have as well been me, as any one else." He is a man about 50 years old, a carpenter by trade, and is naturally, very reticent, and for this reason, and the fact of the bloody deed, is supposed, by many, to be crazy. It is said that he has cherished an ill feeling for Judge Carson since January last, when the Judge, in his capacity as Asscessor of Crab Orchard, applied to him for his list. Some warm words issued between them, and ended by Smith running Carson out of the house with a hatchet. Smith waived an examining trial and as his case is not a bailable one, he will be held in jail here, to be tried for an indictment for murder at the next term of the Circuit Court--provided the friends of Judge Carson do not fear that justice will be thwarted and mete out a more certain punishment to him. Fearing this, the Jail has been nightly guarded by a number of young men summoned for the purpose. Such fiendish acts as the one recorded, deserve the quickest and direst punishment of the law, else no person in the country can feel himself in the least safe. If Smith is insane, he ought to be ironed and placed in an asylum, if not, then severest penalty of the law can hardly atone for his dreadful crime."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY Friday, April 28, 1876: "AN EXCITING SCENE"

"On last Wednesday morning, a very exciting scene occurred at the Court House. The man, John Smith, who killed Judge Carson, was brought out to the Court House to see whether or not the case could be tried at this term. Four sons of Mr. Carson, John, James, Joe and David, came into the room. The Court on hearing that they were armed, had the Sheriff to search them, but no pistols were found. Smith was remanded to Jail, with a guard of six or eight men, and on reaching the Court yard, young Joe Carson, sprang forward with a drawn Navy Revolver, and, placing it almost against the breast of Smith, attempted to fire, but the pistol snapped. The other three sons were present with weapons, but by the courage of the guard, they were all four caught and disarmed, and Smith's life saved, so far. The two young men mostly engaged in the affair, were taken before the Judge, who, at first, ordered them to give bond in $500 each, to keep the peace, but on reflection, concluded to take their word of honor to do no further violence to the prisoner, and they were thus set at liberty. The sympathy of the entire community is with these young men and we heard numbers regret that young Carson did not succeed in avenging the death of his aged father."

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY, October 20, 1876:

"John Smith, charged with murdering Judge Carson, at Crab Orchard was brought up from Louisville last Wednesday, and his case will, in all probability, be called this morning, and tried during the term. The case creates much excitement."

"Promptly at nine o'clock, last Saturday morning, the Court called the case of the Commonwealth against John Smith, charged with the murder of John E. Carson, at Crab Orchard last April. The court room was filled with people from all parts of the county, who were anxious to hear the trial. It was with great difficulty that a jury was obtained, as nearly everybody had come to an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused from reading the papers or from rumors. It took nearly an entire day to get a jury, but finally the following jurymen were sworn: A.K. Denny, J.M. Elder, Jno. W. Logan, J.B. McKinney, G.N. Bradley, John Jones, A.M. Jones, John Dinwiddie, Jno. Menifee, George Bright, George Tribble and T.M. White. After they were sworn, the attorneys for the defense put in the plea of not guilty on account of the insanity of the accused, to which plea of insanity the attorney for the Commonwealth replied in effect that it was simulated, not a real insanity, and that the case of the murder was jealousy. In other words, that there was a 'woman at the bottom' of the entire acts of the defendant Smith. A great many witnesses were examined, especially for the defense, the latter to prove the monomania of Mr. Smith. The witnesses for the prosecution, in giving their evidence in chief, necessarily confined themselves to the act and circumstances of the killing, which occurred on a Sunday morning in April last, in front of the Baptist church door, at Crab Orchard. Judge Carson, the man killed, was shot by Smith with a revolver, five times, either of which is thought would have produced death. Such was the advanced age (72 years) of the deceased. Divine services were just about to begin. A Mr. Foley was with Mr. Carson, who asked Smith not to shoot, and held him for a moment, but Smith was bent on killing Judge Carson. After shooting all the loads out of his revolver, but one, (which failed to fire), Smith walked deliberately across the street where his carpenter shop was situated, but was halted and arrested and taken to Stanford to jail. There was some proof that Carson, who was town Assessor of Crab Orchard, went to Smith's shop to get a list of his taxable property, some months before the killing, and that Smith greatly abused him. There was also some proof that a certain woman who lived near Crab Orchard, was visited now and then by both Smith and Carson, privately. Some proof was also given that Smith sometimes drank liquor, but not to excess. His character was proven by all the witnesses to have been that of a quiet, peaceable, unoffensive man, one who rarely ever said a word to anyone even on business. That he had a great impediment in his speech, and did not like to talk. At the close of the statements as to the killing, etc, the Commonwealth rested her case in chief. The defense then introduced their witnesses to prove the plea of insanity. The sister of Smith, with whom he lived, the niece of Smith and the brother, swore that Smith acted strangely for several months before the killing. That his health was bad, had but little appetite, was restless and lost much sleep. That he imagined there were several men after him to kill him. That there was a combination of men to ruin his character and break him up in business. That on one occasion he told his sister, a maiden lady of fifty years of age, one night at home, that there were three men around the house who had come to harm him. Smith would not be satisfied until his sister or some one else, went for the town marshal and another person, to look for the three men. The marshal and another came, examined the premises, and told Smith no body was there, and that if he was afraid to stay there, to go and stay all night with one of them. Smith accepted the invitation, and went and staid all night with a Mr. DeBord. Other witnesses, among them Col. W.G. Welch, a Mr. Myers and others, testified to acts of monomania, or insanity. The defense introduced two physicians, who had heard all, or nearly all of the evidence and after defining the various species of insanity, said that, if the evidence was true, as detailed by the witnesses, then in their opinion as medical men, the man, John Smith, was of unsound mind. Other witness said that in their opinion, Smith was insane. The foregoing are the main details of the evidence in the defense. After this, the Commonwealth introduced rebutting evidence to show that Smith was a sane man. These were not medical men, however, but were the men who had known Smith for years. Many of them said they believed Smith to be of sound mind, from conversations they had with him on certain occasions. One other physician testified for the prosecution, but his evidence differed but little from that of the other two physicians who testified at the instance of the defense. At the conclusion of the testimony for and against the prisoner, the court gave full instructions to the jury, and adjourned them at five o'clock Tuesday evening, until after supper. The sheriff kept them together until half past six, p. m., when they were called together and the argument was opened for the defense by J.W.

From 'The Interior Journal' of Stanford, KY, October 20, 1878:

Alcorn, Esq., in a forcible speech of about one hour. He was followed by Col. G.W. Dunlap for the prosecution in a speech of much power. He spoke over an hour and a quarter. After this, the jury were discharged until Wednesday morning, at 9 o'clock. At that hour, W.O. Hansford addressed the jury for the defense for over an hour. His speech was a feeling and good one. He was followed by Judge M.C. Saufley for the prosecution in a somewhat lengthy speech, but it had a seemingly powerful effect upon the jury and the audience. Next and last came Col. T.P. Hill, for the defense, in one of the finest and ablest efforts he ever made in behalf of a criminal at our bar. His speech, nearly two hours long, was logical, beautiful, eloquent and convincing. The case was closed by Commonwealth Atoorney George Denny. Mr. Denny, as a prosecutor, has but few equals in any district of the State. To say that he did justice to the Commonwealth, would be only a slight compliment. His effort in the prosecution was bold and telling, and showed him to be capable of attending to the public interest in the field to which he has been chosen. A number of ladies attended the speaking, and seemed to be much entertained. The case was given to the jury at 6 o'clock, and they retired and remained in their room for about two hours, without making a verdict. The Judge then adjourned them for the night, but called them together the next morning and they remained out until nearly noon. Being wholly unable to agree, they came in and so announced to the court, and they were therefore discharged. How they stood in the matter, no one yet knows, as they made a solemn vow among themselves not to let the public know. Smith, of course, was remanded to jail, where he will remain until the next term of this court in April, and all the long and tedious trial will have to be gone through with again. Four days and a part of two nights were spent in the investigatin of the Smith case, which is quite one-third of the entire term."

"The greater portion of the time of the Court since our last report has been taken up in the trial of John Smith, who our readers will remember, shot and killed Judge J.E. Carson, at Crab Orchard on the 23rd day of April, 1876. This is the second trial of the case, and as it has created great excitement throughout the county, it was impossible to obtain but four jurors out of the regular panel, to-wit: Thomas Robinson, Liberty Green, Perry Land and P.L. Simpson, and the Court being satisfied that a full jury could not be obtained in the county, appointed Mr. T.T. Daviess a special Sheriff to go to Boyle county and summons sixty men. On Friday morning about forty men, in obedience to his summons appeared in Court, from which the additional following jurors were obtained: Jeff. Hudson, Wm. Calvert, Peter Bonia, Anthony May, Wm. Dibon, J.N. Prewitt, Samuel McDowell and Nick McDowell, and the panel having been completed the jury was sworn in. The taking of the testimony was commenced at noon Friday, and after the examination of some thirty or forty witnesses was concluded on Tuesday morning, when the charges to the jury having been agreed upon, the argument of the case was begun. The plea of the defendant was that he was at the time of the killing, and is now, insane. He was very ably defended, the speeches of some of his counsel being especially comprehensive and eloquent. Commonwealth Attorney George Denny, Jr., closed the argument on Wednesday about 10 o'clock, with one of his best and most forcible speeches, and the case was then given to the jury, who, after a short retirement returned the following verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendant, John Smith, guilty of murder and fix as his punishment, confinement in the Penitentiary during his natural life." The verdict appears to give almost unusual satisfaction as it will be easy enough to change Mr. Smith's residence from the Penitentiary to the Asylum if the officers at the former institution discover the much longed for insanity. Since the first trial of the case in October last, Smith has been confined for safe keeping in the jail at Louisville, and we are informed by the Clerk of the Court that his case has already cost the Commonwealth over $2,000. It is to be hoped that it is at last ended."

Alcorn, Esq., in a forcible speech of about one hour. He was followed by Col. C.W. Dunlap for the prosecution in a speech of much power. He spoke over an hour and a quarter. After this, the jury were discharged until Wednesday morning, at 9 o'clock. At that hour, W.O. Hanaford addressed the jury for the defense for over an hour. His speech was a feeling and good one. He was followed by Judge M.C. Saulley for the prosecution in a somewhat lengthy speech, but it had a seemingly powerful effect upon the jury and the audience. Next and last came Col. T.P. Hill, for the defense, in one of the finest and ablest efforts he ever made in behalf of a criminal at our bar. His speech, nearly two hours long, was logical, beautiful, eloquent and convincing. The case was closed by Commonwealth Attorney George Denny, Mr. Denny, as a prosecutor, has but few equals in any district of the State. To say that he did justice to the Commonwealth, would be only a slight compliment. His effort in the prosecution was bold and telling, and showed him to be capable of attending to the public interest in the field to which he has been chosen. A number of ladies attended the speaking, and seemed to be much entertained. The case was given to the jury at 8 o'clock, and they retired and remained in their room for about two hours, without making a verdict. The Judge then adjourned them for the night, but called them together the next morning and they remained out until nearly noon. Being wholly unable to agree, they came in and announced to the court, and they were therefore discharged. How they stood in the matter, no one yet knows as they made a solemn vow among themselves not to let the public know. Smith, of course, was remanded to jail, where he will remain until the next term of this court in April, and all the long and tedious trial will have to be gone through with again. Four days and a part of two nights were spent in the investigatin of the Smith case, which is quite one-third of the entire term."

"The greater portion of the time of the Court since our last report has been taken up in the trial of John Smith, who our readers will remember, shot and killed Judge J.E. Carson, at Crab Orchard on the 23rd day of April, 1876. This is the second trial of the case, and as it has created great excitement throughout the county, it was impossible to obtain but four jurors out of the regular panel, to-wit: Thomas Robinson, Liberty Green, Perry Land and P.L. Simpson, and the Court being satisfied that a full jury could not be obtained in the county, appointed Mr. T.T. Davises a special Sheriff to go to Boyle county and summons sixty men. On Friday morning about forty men, in obedience to his summons appeared in Court, from which the additional following jurors were obtained: Jeff. Hudson, Wm. Calvert, Peter Bonis, Anthony May, Wm. Dibon, J.N. Prewitt, Samuel McDowell and Nick McDowell, and the panel having been completed the jury was sworn in. The taking of the testimony was commenced at noon Friday, and after the examination of some thirty or forty witnesses was concluded on Tuesday morning, when the charges to the jury having been agreed upon, the argument of the case was begun. The plea of the defendant was that he was at the time of the killing, and is now, insane. He was very ably defended, the speeches of some of his counsel being especially comprehensive and eloquent. Second son of Almina Fish and George W. Miller, Sr.

1850 Census for Lincoln Co., KY lists him as 7 years old which would make his brith year 1843.

Reared by his grandfather John Fish on the Fish Plantation near Crab Orchard, KY.

Per family tree of Junaita Witt, after marriage to Mary Ann Carson they managed the Fish Plantation before moving west.

Moved from Rockcastle Co., KY to Newtonia, MO. Owned a general store in Newtonia.

1880 moved from Newtonia, Mo. to Baxter Springs, Kansas.

Large headstone in Fish Family Cemetery on the original Fish Plantation in Lincoln Co., KY. Headstone reads, "George W. Miller, born Feb. 26, 1842 Lincoln Co., KY, died Apr. 25, 1903, 101 Ranch, Bliss OT" (Oklahoma Territory). Still in good shape in May 2001, but overgrown with weeds.
To find cemetery: "Start at the Rockcastle/Lincoln county line on Route #150, go westward on #150 .8 mile to old farmhouse road on the right. Turn right, go .2 mile to house. Park car. The cemetery is about 200' up the rise from the house. The cemetery is in a field and is fenced. The weeds are head high and trees have been cut & dropped into the cemetery & have broken the fence and some of the stones." In May 2001, there was a locked gate at the road entrance from #150. Cows were in the pasture. The house is deserted and with the guidance of Jeff Mullens of McKnight Funeral Home in Crab Orchard, we climbed the fence and walked to the cemetery. Per Jeff, the gate could not be legally locked because of access issues for the cemetery, he would talk to the sheriff about it.
There were also headstones for Cyrus Sowder (b. Aug 1847, d. July 29, 1864), and also John A. Gove (b. 22 May 1816, d. 19 Oct 1848) - unknown family connections.

From the Blackwell Times-Record, Thursday, January 11, 1900:

"SURPRISED EVERYBODY.

Geo. Carson is known by almost every man, woman and child in Blackwell, and has a friend in every one of them and they will all be surprised to learn of his marriage. It seems that George quietly slipped out of town, and without even informing his parents of his intention, journeyed to Lawrence, Kansas, and there took unto himself a wife, in the person of Miss Florence Smock, daughter of ex-county treasurer S. J. Smock. The wedding occurred on the 28th day of December, and the happy couple arrived here Monday evening asking for the Carson's parental blessing which they readily obtained. Mr. Carson has selected for his bride a young lady, who is well and favorable known in this city for her many accomplishments of hand, head and heart, and he is indeed fortunate in winning her for a life companion. George Carson, as we said before has almost as many friends as there are inhabitants of Blackwell, and he is a most exemplary young man. The Times-Record joins with the many friends in extending to Mr. and Mrs. George M. Carson, congratulations and best wishes."
